Death of S. G. Lake

The very sad intelligence was received in Blairmore on Tuesday morning that Mr. S. G. Lake, well known throughout the West, having for several years been in the employ of the C.P.R., as coal inspector in this division, had passed away rather suddenly at Toronto on that morning, following a rather serious operation performed several days previously.

Mr. S. G. Lake had been a resident of the Empire, but failed to pass the final examination of the medical authorities. Convinced that he could qualify after undergoing an operation, he determined to go east to Toronto, there to rest up a while and then to be treated by the surgeons. He left for Toronto about twelve days ago. The operation was evidently more serious than at first thought. He failed to survive, and died the death of a hero.

Mr. Lake was of a most pleasing disposition, and was very highly esteemed by all those in this district with whom he came in contact. For a number of years he was a guest at the Rocky Mountain Sanatorium hotel at Frank, where he was a host of friends who will be very sorry to hear of his sudden demise. About a year ago, he and his former room-mate, Mr. J. E. Gillis, decided to purchase a home in Blairmore, where they have since conducted a "bach" of life. Mr. Lake was about twenty-six years of age and unmarried.

Greatest Victory Without Firing a Shot

Washington, March 26.—Dreadnoughts have won the greatest victory of the European war without firing a shot. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt of the navy told the house naval committee. With enough dreadnoughts, he said, the United States would win a "bloodless victory" in a war.

"Today the United States is re-armed with the most powerful fighting ships in the world," he said, "and the navy is now a force of such magnitude that it is a matter of time before it will be strong enough to force the United States to a position of peace." He said that the navy is now a force of such magnitude that it is a matter of time before it will be strong enough to force the United States to a position of peace.

That there is a possibility at least of this nation becoming involved in war with a victor in Europe was asserted by Mr. Roosevelt. He pictured disaster in a war with a fleet twice as strong, expressing belief that the United States fleet would be wiped out, the Panama canal and United States possessions lost and the nation "boiled up" and open to invasion.

"If," he added, "Germany were to meet the English navy and the high seas it would be destroyed undoubtedly."

Reward $15.00 Reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person cutting, without authority, off or green timber on our property.

Protest Drewry Decision

Action has been entered in Calgary to protest the decision of the Supreme Court in the J. C. Drewry will case.

The case involves an $100,000 will left by the owner of Glenview ranch, of Cowley, in which his wife Phoebe Jane Drewry was cut off with nothing. The court afterwards awarded $12,000. This is being contested and will be carried to the privy council.

"The White Feather"

The production of "The White Feather" at the Blairmore opera house on April 26th theatre patronage are promised the most novel drama that has ever been brought to Canada.

The most dramatic feature of the great World War that has been placed before the eyes of the world was brought about in the early stages of the war by the exposure of the German espionage system. The publishing daily of the exploits of the German spies in England was brought about gradually the realization by the British populace that the extent of the system was much greater than had ever been comprehended.

Trusted servants who had long been in the employ of old English families—many of whom were connected with the British government for years. During the war trust were exposed; attempts on innocent lives were revealed. The light of exposure was thrown on a vast conspiracy by hundreds of German workers in an effort to keep their own country advised of important diplomatic moves by Britain.

Then followed wholesale persecutions and imprisonments, the details of which will not be made known until long after the war has become history. Slowly but surely the British hand of justice reached out and wiped the blight of espionage from the frontiers.

Largely responsible for the stirring of feeling against the German suspects in the old Country was the special play "The Man Who Stayed at Home." When first presented in London the spectators were struck dumb. "They wouldn't believe that such things as were portrayed through the play could be enacted in real life."

An awakening came. The daily papers commenced to publish stories seemingly even more weird and improbable than that of "The Man Who Stayed at Home." Never in the theatrical history of England has so much interest been aroused through one play.

"The White Feather," our coming production, is the same play. The same sensation that has been caused in Britain is being extended to Canada.

James Guy-Usher, who plays the leading role, is assisted by such well known players as Anna Virginia, Nina Campbell, Albert Rickford, Charlie Smith, Laurel Bennett, Flora Le Mar and others.

Editor "Enterprise":

Dear Sir:—I herewith enclose you a statement of the receipts of the Patriotic Fund for Southern Alberta, by contributions.

You will notice that Rocky Mountain constituency stands to the front very competently when compared in population and wealth with other parts of Southern Alberta. These figures cover the collections between September 1st, 1915, and March 31st, 1916, and show the Rocky Mountain showing is as creditable as I feel that publication of these figures in your paper would lead to a great amount of satisfaction and encouragement to the people who have subscribed so liberally to this fund.

Trusting that you will see your way clear to give this statement publicity, I remain, Yours very truly,

Editor "Blairmore Enterprise":
Dear Sir:—I was much interested in your account of the settlement of Rev.
Dr. Craig as pastor of the united congregations at Blairmore, and wish to express my heartfelt wishes for great success.

I cherish grateful recollections of the happy weeks enjoyed while visiting old and dear friends in your hospitable "bungalow" during the fall of 1913, when I had the opportunity of giving some special help to the Baptist church and its devoted pastor.

It has been a joy and stimulus to run up occasionally from Lethbridge during the past two and one-half years. As one whose youth was spent in one of the Presbyterian churches of Scotland I am deeply interested in the experience now being made by the people of Blair-

Yours very sincerely,

Urgent Need For Reform

Proceeding with the discussion of the motion before the house on Thursday last, John Kenyon, member for Fitcher Creek, declared that politics in this country have reached a stage where honest and respectable men are afraid to come out in the open and advocate a public policy because the man on the street has come to the belief that all public actions are governed by ulterior motives of narrow politics. This state of affairs, deplorable though it is, is due to the unsavoury patronage system so extensively practised. No man is given credit for any public deed any more, but is read out as the honorable minister of education read out the names of the committee the preceding night. He urged that reform should be adopted in the civil service, reform as wide and wholesome as possible.

Nitro Culture

The school of agriculture, Clar-don, Alberta, will furnish to the farmers of western Canada cultures for insinuating the following legume seed: Alfalfa, White Sweet Clover, Yellow Sweet Clover, Field Peas, Red Clover and Alsike. Each culture is sufficient for inoculating sixty pounds of seed. Full instructions as to the method of using the seed cultures will be enclosed with each mailing case. Each applicant should state the kind of legume seed he wishes to inoculate. The cost per culture, including postage, is twenty-five cents. All applications will be received promptly.

Strange Prophecies Of a London Banker

In the last half of last year a banker called on his bank manager in London with regard to certain allegations of his balance preparatory to his departure for the coast.

"You won't be away long," said the manager.

"How do you know?" was the reply.

"You will be back in quite a short time, according to the bank."

When the officialer returned with a wounded hand in a short time that he was mangled. However, he wound healed, and he was off again. He went to bid "good-bye" to the bank.

"Any more prophecies?" said he jocularly.

"You will be away longer this time," replied the manager, "and then you will be either badly wounded in the leg."

When the officialer was wounded in the leg and came home he sought the first chance to interview his long-term friend at the bank.

"As you can foresee my wounds, can't you give me the date of the end of the war?" he asked.

"The war will end," said the manager, "on June 17 next. But I don't like to witness it. I shall just about see New Year's Day, and that is all."

Hedged on January 2, says the "Economic News." The officialer is now looking forward with extraordinary interest to June 17.

Production and Thrift

"CANADA from her abundance can help supply the Empire's needs, and this must be a comforting thought for those upon whom the heavy burden of directing the Empire's affairs has been laid. She can gain the course before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year—they must produce abundantly in order to meet the demands that may be made, and I believe this to be especially true in regard to live stock, the world's supply of which must be particularly affected in this year's struggle. Grain and straw may yet be in store for us all before this tragic conflict is over, but not one of us can be in the issue, and Canadians will on their duty in the highest sense of that great word."—HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

MODERN war is made by resources, by money, by foodstuffs, as well as by men and by machines. While war is our first concern, it is the imperative duty of every man in Canada to produce all that he can, to work dully hard while our soldiers are in the trenches, in order that the resources of the country may not only be conserved, but increased, for the great struggle that lies before us. "Work and Save" is a good motto for war-time.—MR. THOMAS SCHULTZ, Minister of Finance.

We must feed ourselves, feed our soldiers, and help feed the Allies. The need is greater in 1916 than it was in 1915. The difficulties are greater, the task is heavier, the need is more urgent, the call to patriotism is louder—therefore be thriftful and produce to the limit.

A meeting of the congregation was held at the close of the evening service at the Central Union church on Sunday last, when matters affecting the good and welfare of the church work were given consideration. It was decided to adopt a system of bible studies in connection with the morning service for a period of about five months. This system has been adopted by many of the city congregations and is working out very satisfactorily.

A lady named Mrs. Jessie M. Black is suing a New York City manufacturing concern for $100,000. It is alleged by her that after eating one of the company's nine-pie she dreamed that the Queen Prince had captured Paris and that she saw the Emperor William single handed make a prisoner of General Joffre. The shock of her feelings, she declares, can only be compensated for by the sum named. In this part of the world we can sympathize with her. The company will certainly have to make some changes in its products. If it could get them into Germany and could guarantee similar dreams with them, what a fortune it would make. But with public opinion what it is in the United States and the British blockade in effect, the only thing it is to get busy and manufacture "On to Berlin" pies.

THE BIG GAME OF THE EAST

NOW PLAYING GAME OF WORRYING THE TURK

Some of the Harest Fighting in the War Has Occurred in the Far East, Where Russian Troops Have Engaged Good Work in Keeping Turks Banned

The Caucasus theatre, while it has been one of the hardest fighting of the war, has remained one of the least understood. Geographically, it has seemed remote from all the other major operations—more in the nature of a little war by itself. The average layman when asked to locate the region places it rather indistinctly somewhere in Western Asia.

The Caucasus for a great many years has been Russia's outpost from which gradually she has extended her influence over Northern Persia and the potentially wealthy area of Eastern Asia Minor. The Turks maintain in the other hand, have been Turkey's bulwark against encroaching Russian vital, held with desperation against an ever-increasing pressure from the north.

The first effort of the Ottoman army when it was projected into the war was directed through the Caucasus against Russia. The Russian army on the fortified city of Erzerum sought to clear the frontier and across Kars, the metropolis of the Russian coasted district. The column penetrated to the very outskirts of the city, but a few days there were rumors of its capture, but the Russian army in the end in not only retaining it but driving back the Turks to the frontier and beyond.

All of the first winter of the war fighting of the utmost severity occurred in the mountains, where the army sought back and forth, and at times reached a depth of 20,000 feet. At least 100,000 Russian soldiers in a series of desperate campaigns that lasted until early in April, when the Turkish army, after a stalemate, withdrew a good part of its forces to meet the Russian demonstration against the Dardanelles. The German army, in a defensive, which was organized at the same time, was also engaged in the battle of Dardanelles, at the same time saved the situation for the Turks by compelling the Russian to concentrate their activities in the Caucasus and consequently available for the Russian attack. The Russian army, in the Caucasus, was permitted a decisive victory. The conditions of the great war as a whole were prevented until the resumption of the campaign with any large scale operations.

Simultaneously with the beginning of the drive on the Aras the Russians opened an active campaign on the southern shore of Lake Van. The increased activity in Persia, however, so better equipped for the spirit of co-operation that activates the work of the Russian army in this widespread attack on the Turkish empire. The Russian army of the Caucasus, in the resumption of Russian activity against the Porte came at the time when the British army, in the Caucasus, was withdrawn. From having an offensive campaign in the Caucasus and recuperation after the struggle at Dardanelles, the British army was forced almost overnight to prepare for a new offensive, and to be on the offensive on its opposite front, over a front, including three active fronts, of more than 1,000 miles. The Russian's contribution to the work of the British army in the Caucasus was worthy the best.

What Canada Needs

Enormous Total War Expenditures For the Present Year

The expenditures for war purposes in Canada will aggregate $200,000,000 this year, according to the estimate of the March letter of the Canadian Council of Commerce. This total exceeds anything dreamed of when the work of making ammunition was undertaken in this country. The letter adds: "The output of ammunition, which at the commencement of the present year was valued at $10,000,000, is steadily increasing as a result of greater efficiency. That the heavier demands will be made upon our industry is foreboding by the announcement that at the request of the government the munitions factory is to be expanded to provide a further output of fifty to seventy-five million rounds of small arms ammunition. This will result in bringing new orders of at least $10,000,000 to this country."
